Many low-income lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer (LGBTQ) people and people living with HIV/AIDS (PLWHA) face special challenges because of discrimination and bias. LSNYC fights landlords who refuse to rent to transgender clients; employers who fire workers because they are gay; service providers who tell same-sex partners they are not welcome; and welfare offices, government officials, courts, and non-profits who discourage LGBTQ/PLWHA clients from receiving services and treat them as second-class citizens. LSNYC provides representation and advocacy to achieve justice for these individuals and others. Low-income LGBTQ/PLWHA clients also face the same legal issues as other low-income New Yorkers, and need a safe and respectful place to get help. LSNYC provides zealous advocates who understand the needs of LGBTQ/PLWHA clients.

LSNYC’s LGBTQ/HIV advocacy includes:

- Advice and direct legal representation to people living with HIV/AIDS (PLWHA) in a wide range of civil practice areas, including public benefits, discrimination, confidentiality, housing, advance directives, family law, future custody planning, and access to medical care.
- Our citywide Health Care Legal Partnership with Callen-Lorde Community Health Center. Since 2011, LSNYC advocates provided on-site legal intake and representation in areas such as housing, disability, discrimination, and public assistance and have trained Callen-Lorde staff on legal issues affecting LGBTQ clients.
- Litigation to advance the rights of LGBTQ New Yorkers, including groundbreaking challenges against the City of New York for violating the rights of transgender clients of HRA.
- Policy advocacy work to improve and expand access to benefits through the HIV/AIDS Services Administration (HASA); reduce discrimination; ensure access to medically appropriate housing; protect client rights in supportive housing placements; and fight source of income discrimination that regularly prevents PLWHA from obtaining housing.
- Addressing legal barriers facing populations that are heavily affected by HIV/AIDS by, for example, combatting discrimination against transgender New Yorkers and advocating for governmental recognition of name changes and accurate gender markers.
- Our Queens-based LGBT Advocacy Project, founded in 2011, provides direct legal services, advocacy, and grassroots legal rights clinics for low-income LGBTQ Queens residents with partners like Queens Pride House.
- Monthly legal clinics assisting low-income transgender New Yorkers at The LGBT Center.
- A bi-monthly LGBTQ Task Force, co-founded by LSNYC in 2013, provides an opportunity for lawyers and advocates serving low-income LGBTQ New Yorkers to strategize and collaborate. This task force grew out of a coalition of advocates organized to address transgender discrimination at HRA and other governmental agencies.
- Collaborations with advocacy organizations including Sylvia Rivera Law Project and Lambda Legal.
- LSNYC advocates developed comprehensive fact sheets for low-income people on marriage equality and information for transgender people on how to change their names and gender markers at HRA and the Social Security Administration.
